Either make a structural model that has a gap for 'kubernetes or something else goes here', or the impact is so big that we need to version

Ronny: we probably dont need massive scaling in the near future, more important is kicking off the services

Taeer: kubernetes allows this more dynamically, not sure if thats what we currently need

Configuring the network as a network is lacking in current nixos

For now fine to leave the conversation about Kubernetes for the near future

No expected blockers for the near future for either Robert nor Bogdan
